【参考范文】

Dear Kevin,

Hearing that you are interested in the Labour Week held in our school last week, I feel extremely delighted to introduce relevant information about it.

Aimed at arousing students' awareness of labor, various activities were organized in the Labour Week. With great passion, all the students in our school got involved in various tasks, ranging from planting trees, arranging books in the library to sorting garbage in an eco-friendly way. With our joint efforts, the camps soon took on a new look, becoming cleaner and more fascinating.

Tired as we were, we were all satisfied to see a cleaner environment. In my opinion, not only did I obtain a brand-new insight into the meaning of labor, but I would cherish the fruits of others' labor.

Best wishes.

Yours,
Li Hua

Text 1

W: What do you think of this dress?

M: It looks too big for you, but I like the color and the material is good quality.

Text 2

W: What's that building out there?

M: That's a storage space.

W: Great. I like to garden. I need a place for my tools.

M: That's good. Let's go outside and look at the backyard.

Text 3

W: We're having fish and potatoes for dinner. Is that OK?

M: Just the potatoes, please.

W: That's not enough. I'll cook you some sausages and eggs to go with them.

M: I'll have sausages but you know I'm not interested in eggs.

Text 4

W: Hey Danny. Where are you going?

M: Into town. I've finally saved up enough money for that new computer game.

W: It's cheaper online you know.

M: Yeah, I know. It's just like ordering by phone. But you've got to wait ages for it to arrive in the post. I want to play it today.

Text 5

M: Can I have my plane ticket now?

W: Well, I called the airline this morning and confirmed your flight. Your ticket is being sent here. You'll have it today.

M: Good, one less thing to worry about.

Text 6

W: John, I can't believe it. How are you?

M: Wow! Linda? I haven't seen you for ages. What have you been up to?

W: I'm at Faber College now.

M: What's your major—literature?

W: No, it's... uh... actually history. How about you?

M: Be busy with my new job selling computers. I've been traveling around the country to do my business this past year. I just love it.

Text 7

M: Aren't you going to Las Vegas next week for the annual conference? I thought you went every year.

W: Well, yes. But this time I'm not going to be able to attend. My mum is in hospital. I'm afraid I can't leave her right now.

M: How will we get along without you? You've been in charge of planning the whole thing for years.

W: Well, I'd done all that I could do from here. There really shouldn't be any problems because we do pretty much the same thing every year. If there are any problems, I'm sure you could handle them by yourself.

M: OK, I'll try my best.

Text 8

W: Hi, Dan. Are you looking forward to the school swimming competition tonight?

M: Well I am, but I'm a bit nervous. I haven't been in the team for ages because I hurt my leg while swimming.

W: Oh, yeah. Well, you've done lots of practice recently. I'm sure you're as fit as you were before.

M: I don't think so. Everyone seemed to be faster than me at the last practice.

W: Come on, Dan. So, what time do we have to get to school?

M: Six, isn't it?

W: Oh, my bus doesn't arrive until 6:15.

M: My dad could give you a lift. You live on the block of flats behind the post office, don't you?

W: Yeah, that's right. But I can walk around to your house. That'll save your dad having to drive to my flat.

M: OK. Can you be there by 5:30?

W: Fine.

Text 9

M: Have you seen Market Street this week? I missed last night's program. Did anything exciting happen?

W: It was about Cara, Sally's sister and they share a flat. Well, Sally went on holiday but she lent her key to their cousin Tony. He doesn't have his own flat and he always wants to leave his parents' house because he isn't happy living with them.

M: Who's Tony?

W: He's that good-looking one.

M: Oh, yeah. Carry on.

W: The problem was that Sally forgot to tell Cara about the key. And she didn't know that Tony and Cara had had a big argument two weeks before. So when Tony arrived at the flat, Cara refused to let him in.

M: So what did Tony do?

W: When Cara was at work, Tony invited some friends of Cara's to the flat. They cooked a meal and they were all waiting for Cara. When she came in and had some nice food, she really enjoyed herself.

M: And what about Tony?

W: Oh, Cara let him stay. She decided he wasn't so bad after all.

Text 10

W: Well, I'm going to talk about a trip I made across Australia. The transport I used was a motorbike. It wasn't a new bike, it was—what's the word—second-hand, and I bought it because I wanted to see Australia. I didn't want to use public transport because I wanted to be independent. I had a month's holiday before I started my course and I made the trip with a friend, Liu Mei, a Chinese girl, because I was frightened of traveling alone. I met her at a language school where we studied English together. We traveled along the south coast and saw some of the desert. Of course we went to the Sydney Opera House. The good thing about the journey was that we met a lot of other people who were traveling. We went to places which are difficult to reach on public transport, and the trip was quite cheap. Also, the motorbike had a quite powerful engine, so it was fast and exciting. The bad things were the rain and the heat because they made us tired. I have great memories of the trip because I met really friendly people and I saw a lot of interesting places. I still have friends who I made during that trip. In all, I think it was the best journey I've ever had.
