One possible version:

Last Monday, I read a notice at the gate. It was about a “Student Forum” the school was to hold. I registered myself, together with others.

Then for three days we were all very busy after class. Each of us prepared a speech on his or her own topic by collecting data both in the library and from the Internet.

Last Friday morning we spoke, one by one in the lecture hall. I was the second to speak. At the end of my speech they gave loud applause.

I believe I have learned a great deal from this valuable experience.
