第三部分: 阅读理解(共一节, 24 分)

第一节(共 12 小题; 每小题 2 分, 共 24 分)

阅读下列短文，从每题所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中，选出最佳选项，并在答题纸上将该项涂黑。

A

Whether you're brand new to hiking or looking to discover your next favorite trail (路线), hiking apps might be the tool to help you get there. Take a look at the list below and choose one that meets your needs.

1. G-GPS

G-GPS is one of the most popular navigation(导航) tools designed for remote mountainous areas. For some hikers, dependable maps and an easily searchable trail database are a must for a hiking app. G-GPS has both, which makes it a great option for beginners and expert hikers alike. It provides data like pace, distance and increased height. Moreover, it works fine when you're offline and without cell service.

If you're a fan of cold-temperature hiking, this app's paid version ($40) has a winter map choice that displays features to help navigate in snowy weather.

2. P-Finder

Many hikers tend to have the experience of standing on a peak, looking at another mountain and wondering "What peak is that?"

If you'd like to avoid the problem, P-Finder might be the app for you. It takes the guesswork out of your exploration, thanks to its unique offering: a 360° view of mountain peaks and their names from your current location, requiring no Internet connection. Plus, all levels of hikers can use it, especially for finding new peaks to hike.

Added bonus: The app has some practical functions, which allow you to take some breathtaking shots and then automatically(自动地) label each peak with its correct name.

You can buy the app for $5 on its official website.

3. N-Land

N-Land Digital is a Canadian nonprofit that helps expert hikers to learn more about their local history and the Indigenous territories (土著领地).

By entering your address, a number of links will appear with the names of different Indigenous nations. Clicking on those links, you will be taken to a page specifically about that nation, language, or treaty, where you can view some sources, give feedback, and learn a little more. You can even do this if you're offline. This app is an ongoing project, and maps of new territories are regularly added.

You'll likely want to use this app together with another app such as A-Trails or V-Ranger, if you're also seeking navigational help.

41. Which app can provide a whole view of mountain peaks?

A. G-GPS. B. P-Finder. C. N-Land. D. A-Trails.

42. What do the three apps have in common?

- A. They suit all levels of hikers.
- B. They should be used with other apps.
- C. They are free of charge in the app stores.
- D. They can be used without Internet connection.

43. What can we learn from the passage?

- A. G-GPS is a must for hikers due to its database.
- B. P-Finder can automatically take a photo for users.
- C. N-Land can increase users' knowledge of the land.
- D. V-Ranger can attach the correct name to each location.

44. What is the purpose of the passage?

- A. To recommend apps for hikers.
- B. To introduce various hiking trails.
- C. To encourage people to go hiking.
- D. To compare different kinds of apps.

B

As a clueless freshman,I waltzed into my first creative writing course by accident, thinking it was a literature class on how to read stories, not how to write them.

When the teacher introduced the course,I realized my mistake. The credits I earned from the course wouldn't count toward my major. By the end of the session, however, I decided that I had to be a part of the course. Perhaps, as a lifelong reader,I was eager to understand how stories worked their magic.

But taking the class would be impossible: I wasn't even on the waitlist. That's when the teacher asked for a volunteer to submit the first workshop story.

Silence blanketed the room. No one risked eye contact. Whoever volunteered would have to write a whole story in a week. Perhaps they, like me, had never written one before.

Seizing my chance,I raised my hand and asked,“If I go first, will you give me a spot in the class?”He said he would.

So, instead of keeping my head down and avoiding eye contact, I did the opposite.

Years later,I'd completed a degree in creative writing and was working on a novel when a literary agent(经纪人) asked to read the first 50 pages of my draft. But I wasn't comfortable showing her anything;the novel was far from done.

Throughout graduate school,I'd been advised many times not to contact agents until I have a complete draft. In the meanwhile,I knew the beginning of my story was attractive and that the agent might not remember me after a year.

So, once again, instead of keeping my head down and avoiding eye contact, I did the opposite. I sent her the first three chapters. A month later, she signed me on the strength of those chapters alone. She has since seen me through the publication of three novels.

Determination, focus, perseverance—the qualities that I consider crucial in getting me into Stanford no doubt helped me become the novelist I am today. And yet if I'd trained my gaze only on the path ahead, I would have missed so many happy accidents, so many beautiful opportunities to look up, raise my hand, and say yes.

45. What made the author finally decide to take the course?

- A. The popularity of the course.
- B. Her curiosity about story writing.
- C. Her confidence in her writing skills.
- D. The need to get credits for her degree.

46. The author volunteered to write the first workshop story to

- A. challenge herself
- B. impress the teacher
- C. display her talent
- D. win a place in the class

47. The author sent her first three chapters to the agent because

- A. her friends advised her to do so
- B. her story was attractive to readers
- C. the agent asked her to turn in the work
- D. she wanted to get the chance of publication

48. What does the passage mainly tell us?

- A. Action speaks louder than words.
- B. Chance favors only the prepared mind.
- C. Success comes to those who will and dare.
- D. Confidence leads to growth and fulfillment.

C

Sportsmanship is the cornerstone of competitive sports, representing the principles of fair play, respect and honesty. It goes beyond winning and losing, emphasizing the importance of moral behavior, respecting each other, and fellowship.

At the heart of sportsmanship lies the concept of fair play. It fosters(培养) a culture of rule-following, fair judgment, and equal opportunities for all participants. Fair play encourages athletes to compete with integrity, showing honesty and accepting the outcomes gracefully. It fosters an environment where cheating, unsportsmanlike and rude behavior are discouraged. By upholding fair play, athletes develop a sense of morality(道德) and a strong character that extends beyond the field of sports.

Sportsmanship also includes respect and empathy(共情), creating an environment that encourages understanding and camaraderie. Athletes show respect for opponents, officials, and teammates, recognizing their contributions and valuing their abilities. They appreciate the various backgrounds, skills and perspectives that athletes from different teams bring to the game. Through respect and empathy, sportsmanship bridges gaps, promotes inclusivity and fosters a sense of unity among athletes and fans alike.

Sportsmanship is shown by athletes who act as role models, inspiring others with their conduct on and off the field. When athletes display sportsmanship, they send a powerful message to young fans, teaching them the importance of fair play, respect and moral behavior. This positive influence extends to society as a whole, where sportsmanship can shape attitudes, values and behaviors beyond the field of sports. By upholding the principles of sportsmanship, athletes contribute to a healthier, more caring society.

Sports organizations, coaches and educators play an important role in promoting sportsmanship. They should foster an environment that encourages fair play, respect and honesty. Emphasizing sportsmanship in training programs and competitions helps athletes develop a strong moral compass, empowering them to make moral choices both in sports and in life. Furthermore, fans and audience should also welcome sportsmanship, creating a positive atmosphere that encourages fair competition and respect for all participants.

Sportsmanship is the bedrock of competitive sports, emphasizing the values of fair play and respect. It improves the sporting experience, fosters unity and shapes athletes into responsible and caring individuals. By promoting sportsmanship, we can create a sporting culture where victories are celebrated but fairness, respect and the spirit of the game take center stage.

49. What does the underlined word “camaraderie” mean in Paragraph 3?

A. Friendship. B. Leadership. C. Contribution. D. Competition.

50. What are Paragraphs 2 and 3 mainly about?

A. How sportsmanship is understood.

B. Why sportsmanship is stressed.

C. When sportsmanship is shaped.

D. Where sportsmanship is treasured.

51. What can be learned from Paragraph 5?

A. Athletes should be trained to make moral choices.

B. Audience could influence athletes' performance in sports.

C. Promoting sportsmanship requires everyone's contribution.

D. Officials should take a lead in creating a positive atmosphere.

52. What is the best title for this passage?

- A. Sportsmanship: Advantages of Doing Sports
- B. Sportsmanship: Spirit of Fair Play and Respect
- C. Showing Sportsmanship: Qualities of a Good Player
- D. Teaching Sportsmanship: Values of Honesty and Courage

第四部分：书面表达(共两节，26分)

第一节(共4小题;第53—55小题各2分,第56小题5分,共11分)

阅读下面短文，根据题目要求用英文回答问题。请在答题卡指定区域作答。

Are You a Scanner?

“I can never stick to anything.”

“I get bored as soon as I know how to do something.”

...

If you've ever said these to yourself, chances are good that you're a Scanner. Unlike those people who seem to find and be satisfied with one area of interest, you're born to be interested in many things. Instead of a disability to be overcome by a strong will, it is actually an exceptional gift, a whole new way of thinking.

Intense curiosity about many unrelated subjects is the most basic characteristic of a Scanner. Scanners are indeed unique beings, and they may not even recognize themselves because they seldom meet others like them. How do you know if you're a Scanner? Let's start by defining who isn't one.

Those who find fulfillment in one field are called Divers. Examples of Divers include professional musicians, scientists, mathematicians, and others deeply involved in their fields. Scanners constantly seek new horizons, while Divers find satisfaction within their field.

To Scanners the world is like a big candy store full of fascinating opportunities, and they reach out and stuff their pockets excitedly. However, this may not last forever. As kids, most Scanners have been having a great time! At school no one objects to their many interests, because every hour of every student's school day is devoted to a different subject. But at some point in high school or soon after, everyone is expected to make a choice, and that's when Scanners run into trouble. While some people happily narrow down to one subject, Scanners simply can't. Conventionally, if you're a jack-of-all-trades, you'll be a master of none.

Identifying yourself as a Scanner means changing the way you see yourself in the world. It starts with understanding that you should stop trying to fit into the accepted norm at once and begin learning about who you really are.

In conclusion, if you're a Scanner, embrace your unique nature. Your diverse interests are a gift, not a weakness.

53. What is the most basic characteristic of a Scanner?

54. Why do Scanners run into trouble when they grow up?

55. Please decide which part is false in the following statement, then underline it and explain why.

Identifying yourself as a Scanner means you should change the way you see the world.

56. Are you a Diver or a Scanner? How would you embrace your unique nature?(In about 40 words)

56. 参考答案: (Three Possible versions)

①

I'm a Scanner. Embracing who I am means realizing that my natural curiosity and varied interests are my strengths. Instead of fitting into what society expects, I love that I can dive into many different passions, and enjoy the depth they add to my life.

②

I'm a Diver. Diving deep into what I love means being true to myself, finding joy in specializing in something. I love becoming really good at one thing, putting all my energy into that passion and thriving on it.

③

I am a Scanner and I enjoy being one. I'll accept myself the way I am, and be proud of the benefits as a Scanner. I will no longer force myself to focus on only one thing. Instead, I am going to explore the choices life offers.

第二节: Two Possible Versions

①

I agree with Mike. Convenience matters, but what should be valued more is the opportunity to be with our loved ones.

For me, the thought of being reunited with family and friends is what keeps me happy while we are apart. I refuse to let anything take that away from me. Talking face-to-face, being filled in on what's been happening, preparing festival dishes together, seeing the house buzzing with activities..., these are not something we can experience unless we are physically around each other.

Besides, I think it's our responsibility to carry on our tradition of celebrating our festivals. It's part of our culture and also part of who we are, and surely we cannot do that by sitting on our sofa and doing online celebrations.

Anyway, I believe reuniting with the entire family is the most important part of a festival, and I love it for that.

②

For me, celebrating festivals online is one of the best things technology brings to us.

Firstly, online celebration helps us maintain connection when distance keeps us away. When face-to-face gathering is not possible, video chat enables us to see and hear our beloved ones. Last Lantern Festival, while Dad was on a business trip in Yunnan, it didn't stop Mom and I from connecting with him—through video chat, we cooked and had dinner together. Despite the three thousand kilometers between us, we felt close as if we were sitting next to each other in our dining room.

Secondly, we can explore more fun and diverse ways to celebrate traditional festivals online. For example, putting on VR headset, we can visit themed exhibitions, watch online performances, and even play games to learn more about the festival. The 3D virtual environment gives us a unique festival experience.

Online celebration breaks down the barrier of time and space, bringing people closer and enriching our festival experience. So why not embrace it?

Text 1

W: Hey! How did your geography test go?

M: Not bad, thanks. How about your Chinese test?

W: Oh, it went really well. I can't thank you enough for helping me with it! I owe you a treat for that.

M: It's my pleasure.

Text 2

W: Good morning. Can I help you?

M: I'd like some information about your summer courses.

W: All right. We have a 12-week English course, and also provide services for study tours and summer camps.

M: Well, I am just eager to improve my English.

Text 3

W: Are you checking any bags?

M: No, I only have hand luggage and a laptop.

W: Okay, here's your boarding pass. Your flight leaves from Gate 14B and the boarding starts at 17:50 PM. Your seat number is 18 A.

M: Thanks.

Text 4

W: You won't believe what I just experienced!

M: What is it?

W: I ordered a package last week and it was delivered by a robot.

M: Wow. I had a similar experience last time I ordered lunch. A robot put it in the box downstairs.

W: I have to say — technology is developing fast.

M: Yeah. Maybe one day we'll all be travelling in driverless cars.

Text 5

W: Hi, Tom. How are you? Are you getting better?
M: Yeah, so much better, how was school?
W: Great, we had such an interesting English class today.
M: Oh, really? What made it so interesting?
W: We had a heated discussion about the impact of social media on language and communication.
M: That does sound fascinating. I wish I could have been there too.

听第6段材料，回答第6至7小题。现在，你有10秒钟的时间阅读这两道小题。

W: Good morning. I would like to make an appointment with Dr. Smith, please.
M: Of course. May I have your name, please?
W: My name is Sarah Johnson.
M: Thank you, Ms. Johnson. When would you like to schedule your appointment?
W: I prefer to come in on a Sunday morning if possible.
M: I'm sorry, but our office is closed on Sundays, Dr. Smith is available from Monday to Saturday.
Which day would work for you?
W: I can come on Monday, Tuesday and Friday, although I really want to get it done sooner.
M: Sure, we can manage that. Your appointment is scheduled for Monday at 10:00 am. May I have your phone number, please?
W: Thank you. It's 987-654-3210.
M: Great, Ms. Johnson. We look forward to seeing you then.
W: Thank you very much.

听第7段材料，回答第8至9小题。现在，你有10秒钟的时间阅读这两道小题。

W: How are you doing in your science project?
M: I have got four brilliant group members to work with. But we are a bit stuck with finding a topic.
W: Have you got any inspiration from the textbooks?
M: The textbooks cover so many topics. They all seem interesting but it's rather hard to choose just one.
W: I suggest you read the assignments students wrote last year. Some of them are really well-focused and offer creative views.
M: That will be of much help. Thanks. And once I get an idea, how could I make it into a paper?
W: Perhaps an outline may help you. Before you start looking for suitable books or articles to draw on, work out the headings for different sections.
M: I see. Then I could organize my notes under each heading until I finish the full paper.
W: Absolutely.

听第8段材料，回答第10至12小题。现在，你有15秒钟的时间阅读这三道小题。

M: Excuse me, do you mind me asking you a few questions?
W: Sure, go ahead.
M: Do you usually talk on the phone?
W: Yes, I do. It's a good way to keep in touch.
M: Who do you usually talk to on the phone?
W: My mom! I am at a boarding school, and I talk to my mom almost every day. Things don't seem quite right if she doesn't call me one day.
M: So, what was the most impressive phone conversation you have ever had?
W: It was last month, when I got a phone call from my math teacher. He told me I got the first prize in the math competition and wanted to congratulate me on that.
M: Wow! That's quite something! How did you feel then?
W: It was really exciting. I had been working so hard for it, and finally, I made it.
M: That's great. Another question, do you prefer talking directly or talking on the phone?
W: Personally, talking directly is much better to me since I enjoy face-to-face communication. And I can see facial expressions, eye contact and how the other party is taking in all the information.

While talking on the phone, you can only listen to the voice.

第三节

听下面一段独白，完成第 13 至 17 五道小题，每小题仅填写一个词。听独白前，你将有 20 秒钟的时间阅读试题，听完后你将有 60 秒钟的作答时间。这段独白你将听两遍。

Taking effective notes while doing listening practice in English is a valuable skill. In this introduction, we will explore some effective note-taking strategies.

Firstly, focus on key information. Listen for main ideas, supporting details, and key vocabulary. As you listen, write down keywords or phrases that stand out to you, which helps you to remember important points.

Next, develop a note-taking system that works for you. You can use abbreviations, symbols, or create a shorthand style that allows you to record information quickly. Organize your notes in a structured manner. Use headings, bullet points, or numbers to clearly identify different topics or subtopics.

Lastly, make use of visual aids such as diagrams, charts, or mind maps to represent information visually. This can help you to visualize relationships between ideas and concepts, making it easier to understand and remember. You can also use different colors to highlight important points.

By following these strategies, you will develop strong note-taking skills that will improve your English listening practice.

Good morning. I'm the director for the volunteering club in this school. As you may know, the benefits from volunteering are not just for the people being helped. Volunteers use their skills to cope with others' difficulties, and the experience may be valuable for their future job hunting, since employers look favorably on someone who's given up their time to help others. Besides, most volunteers feel what they are doing gives them a purpose in their lives. Beyond personal growth and career development, volunteering benefits society as a whole. By devoting your time and energy to causes that matter, you contribute to the well-being of those less fortunate and help build a stronger and better community. These are the benefits volunteering can bring to us. Join us, your participation will make a big difference. Right now, we have a project of teaching English to children from poor families. If interested, you can come to me for further information afterwards.
